INVESTIGATIVE REPORT
AND
NOTICE OF INTENT TO DISMISS

24
25 I. INTRODUCTION
26

27 On April 2, 2001 the Browning Federation of Classified Employees, Local No.
28
29 4532 filed an unfair labor practice charge with this Board alleging that the Browning 30
31 Public Schools were violating the Act by unilaterally attempting to exclude temporary 32
33 employees from the bargaining unit. Defendant denies any violation of the law and asks
34
35 that the charge be dismissed.
36
37

38
39
40 II. Background
41

42 The Board of Personnel Appeals has jurisdiction over this matter under Sections
43
44 39-31-103 (2) and 39-31-405, MCA. The Parties are in the midst of bargaining a 45
46 successor agreement. On April 19, 2001 Defendant's counsel motioned, with the 47
48
49
50

1 agreement of Complainant's counsel, for a time extension for its response to this
2
3 charge, which was granted. This Board then received that response on May 14, 2001.
4
5

6 7 8 III. Discussion

9
10 The Montana Supreme Court has approved the practice of the Board of 11
12 Personnel Appeals in using Federal Court and National Labor Relations Board (NLRB)
13
14 precedents as guidelines in interpreting the Montana Collective Bargaining for Public 15
16 Employees Act, State ex rel. Board of Personnel Appeals vs. District Court, 183
17
18 Montana 223 598 P.2d 1117, 103 LRRM 2297; Teamsters Local No. 45 vs. State ex rel.
19
20 Board of Personnel Appeals, 185 Montana 272, 635 P.2d 185, 119 LRRM 2682; and 21
22 AFSCME Local No. 2390 vs. City of Billings, Montana 555 P.2d 507, 93 LRRM 2753.
23

24
25 Good faith bargaining is defined in Section 39-31-305, MCA as the performance
26
27 of the mutual obligation of the public employer or his representative and the 28
29 representatives of the exclusive representative to meet at reasonable times and 30
31 negotiate in good faith with respect to wages, hours, fringe benefits and other conditions
32
33 of employment or the negotiation of an agreement or any question arising thereunder in 34
35 the execution of a written contract incorporating any agreement reached. Such 36
37 obligation does not compel either party to agree to a substantive proposal or require the 38
39 making of a concession. See NLRB v. American National Insurance Company, 30 40
41 LRRM 2147, 343 US 395, (1952); NLRB v. Bancroft Manufacturing Company, Inc., 106
42
43 LRRM 2603, 365 F.2d 492, CA 5 (1981); and Daily News of Los Angeles v. NLRB, 73
44
45 F.3d 406, 414, 151 LRRM 2242 (1996).
46
47
48
49
50

1 Complainant's allegations stem from a Defendant School Board meeting held
2
3 recently before the instant charge was filed. It alleges that during the meeting
4
5 Defendant Board held a vote on whether or not to exclude temporary employees from 6
7 Complainant bargaining unit who by past practice had previously been included. As a
8
9 result, Complainant believed that Defendant was attempting to unilaterally alter the 10
11 bargaining unit and thus filed this charge.
12
13

14 Defendant makes a multifaceted defense beginning with the contention that 15
16 Complainant's charge statement fails to state a claim as required by ARM 24.26.680.
17
18 Instead, it asserts that Complainant makes a conclusion of law. Further, Defendant
19
20 charges that because Complainant had earlier failed to successfully pursue a grievance
21
22 over the same issue, it is now requesting that this Board grant it something it was 23
24 unable to attain in a different forum. Additionally, it suggests that Complainant file a unit
25
26 clarification.
27
28

29 Next, Defendant makes a five-point argument that the instant charge lacks merit.
30
31 First, temporary employees are not only not hired by Defendant School Board but they 32
33 do not even qualify as public employees under Section 39-31-104 (9) (a), MCA.
34
35 Second, because the Parties' recognition clause, Article I, specifically excludes 36
37 seasonal employees and by logical extension that should include temporary employees
38
39 as well. Third, that the agreement recognizes solely permanent, not temporary, 40
41 employees as indicated by Article III. Fourth, no temporary employees have paid
42
43 required representation fees. Last, Defendant strongly asserts that neither Party has 44
45 ever recognized or treated temporary employees as bargaining unit members thus 46
47 clearly establishing a past practice.
48
49
50

1 The Parties' agreement contains a curious recognition clause in Article I, 1. It
2
3 identifies Complainant Federation as the exclusive bargaining representative for "all 4
5 bargaining unit members" then goes on to list certain, excluded classes of employees.
6
7 Temporary employees are neither specifically included in nor specifically excluded from 8
9 the unit by the recognition clause nor by Article IX, 2 which lists general unit job "areas".
10
11 What is clear, however, is that the central issue in the instant case involves the scope of 12
13 the bargaining unit.
14

15
16 In HillRom Company v. NLRB, 139 LRRM 2673 (CA 7 1992) the Court
17
18 differentiated between the scope of a bargaining unit and the transfer of work out of a 19
20 unit. Relevant to this case, the Court found that the scope of a bargaining unit is a 21
22 permissive subject for collective bargaining whether the unit is Board certified or 23
24 mutually recognized by practice of the parties.
25

26
27 The NLRB held that not only is the scope of a bargaining unit a permissive
28
29 subject, but it has constructed a two part determinative test to evidence it. The test 30
31 differentiates between unit scope and work assignments. Antelope Valley Press, 143
32
33 LRRM 1209 (1993); and Chicago Tribune Co., 152 LRRM 1019 (1995).
34

35
36 Both the NLRB and the U.S. Supreme Court have addressed the issue of alleged 37
38 unilateral changes to contract provisions which are permissive subjects. Quoting the 39
40 Court in relevant part about a unilateral change being:
41

42 "...a prohibited unfair labor practice only when it changes a term that is a mandatory
43 rather than a permissive subject of bargaining...the remedy for a unilateral mid-term 44 modification to a permissive term lies in an action for breach of contract...not in an 45 unfair-labor-practice proceeding."
46
47
48
49
50

1 Chemical Workers v. Pittsburgh Glass, 404 US 157 [78 LRRM 2974] (1971). See also 2
3 Noblitt Bros., 139 LRRM 1336 (1991); and Tampa Sheet Metal Co., 129 LRRM 1188
4
5 (1988).
6

7
8 Although the agreement's recognition clause is silent on temporary employees
9
10 being a part of the bargaining unit, Complainant contends that by practice temporaries
11
12 had previously been included. Article X, 3 contains a "zipper clause" that reads in part:
13

14
15 "This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties and no verbal 16 statements or past practices shall supersede any of its provisions."
17
18

19
20 Courts and the NLRB have found that clear and unmistakable zipper clauses like the 21
22 one above do indeed relieve employers of any obligation to follow a past practice.
23

24
25 Gannett Rochester Newspapers v. NLRB, 142 LRRM 2809 (CA DC 1993); and TCI of 26
27 New York, 139 LRRM 1277 (1991). Therefore, in the present case any practice of 28
29 temporary employee inclusion in the bargaining unit is superceded by the clear contract 30
31 language in the recognition clause which does not identify temporaries as unit
32
33 members. Were they to be unilaterally removed from the unit by Defendant there would 34
35 be no violation of the Act because the zipper clause allows such actions and, further,
36
37 the issue is a permissive, not mandatory, bargaining subject.
38
39
40
41

42 IV. Determination

43

44 Based upon the foregoing, the record does no support a finding of probable merit
45
46 to the instant charge and therefore this matter must be dismissed.
